County Tax Revaluation Shows Overall Decrease

FAYETTEVILLE – Tax officials estimate the taxable value for real property in Cumberland County has dropped approximately $560 million, or 2.9 percent, from 2016. The decrease means the county faces a potential loss of $4.1 million in tax revenue.

Tax Administrator Joe Utley reported results of the 2017 revaluation to county commissioners this morning during a Finance Committee meeting. Tax notices were mailed Jan. 31 and 62 percent of properties had an assessed value reduction. The total taxable value in 2016 was $19.3 billion. The total beginning taxable value for 2017 is estimated at $18.8 billion, which is subject to change based on exemptions, deferments and appeals.

Overall, residential assessed values are down 4.9 percent and commercial assessments are up 4 percent. Approximately 72 percent of the tax base comes from residential properties and 28 percent from commercial and industrial.

Total assessed value for residential properties dropped $726 million from 2016. Commercial assessments were up approximately $201 million. The assessed value for industrial property decreased less than 1 percent by about $686,000.

Total assessed value for all three categories dropped by $525 million, or 2.6 percent, a bit lower than the 2.9 percent drop in taxable value. Assessed values do not reflect exemptions and other exclusions.

All types of residences experienced a drop, with condominiums experiencing the largest decrease at 31 percent. Single-family homes dropped 5.1 percent and multifamily units saw a slight decrease of 1 percent. However, residential vacant land jumped in value by 9.5 percent and commercial vacant land increased 13 percent in value.

County Manager Amy Cannon said the revaluation changes the landscape for preparing the Fiscal Year 2018 budget.

“We have some challenges and the best thing we can do is develop some options for the board to consider,” Cannon said. “That could include reducing our expenditures, which may lead to a reduction in county services.”

Another option is adjusting the tax rate. Based on information today, the county would need to raise the tax rate approximately 2 cents to generate the same tax revenue as before the revaluation.
